Faces of Resilience -a two-day workshop geared toward gun violence survivors looking individual and community trauma through art. We provided gun locks to all participants; we provided written and electronic educational materials focused on healing trauma and building community. We focused on building resilience in the face of tragedy with processes that allowed for conversation/emotional outlet and a tangible token in the form of their mask and a portrait of them with their mask. Participants were given an opportunity to share their experience, along with, gun safety experts, clinical therapist and physiotherapist during the August Wilson Center Community Day.
